

The Community Development Research and Practice Series

In partnership with Routledge, the Community Development Society (www.comm-dev.org) is pleased to present this new book series. It will serve community developers, planners, public administrators and others involved in practice and policy making in the realm of community development. The series will provide timely, useful and applied information for researchers, students, and practitioners. Building on a 40 year history of publishing the journal, Community Development: Journal of the Community Development Society, the book series seeks to contribute to the growing and rapidly changing knowledge base as a resource for practitioners and researchers alike.

Community Visioning Programs

Edited by Norman Walzer Senior Research Scholar in the Center for Governmental Studies at Northern Illinois University and Gisele Hamm Research Associate in the Illinois Institute for Rural Affairs, Western Illinois University

Community visioning is key in helping local public officials and community leaders create a flourishing future for their cities, and is essential for the effective planning and implementation of these strategies. Visioning involves collaborative goal setting to motivate actions – of planners, citizens, and officials – in order to design and carry out a strategic planning process for the successful development of the community.

The use of visioning since the 1980s has led to a wealth of information on the productivity of the paths it has taken. The contributors, all with experience working in the area, review the successes and failures of the strategies, and look at new innovations which are pushing the frontiers of community visioning.

This review of the development of visioning focuses on small and medium sized communities in North America. It aims to guide citizens, local leaders and planners on what strategies are best to help them revitalise their communities and ensure a prosperous future.
